Features

- These are the lighter version of the Jester, providing the same features for younger and lighter riders
- No-pull-out screws and a centralized swing weight make these ideal for spins and twists

- Spring in the toes is inserted horizontally and with a sole plate inclined by 5° to provide higher energy absorption and reduce the risk of early release
- Features the latest generation of Inter Pivot 3 freeride heels for improved power transmission, energy absorption, vertical heel elasticity and improved step-in comfort
- Stainless-steel AFD (anti-friction device) gliding plate supports a precise release almost entirely unhindered by dirt, snow and ice
- Anti-ice rail—use the metal rail to scratch off ice and snow below your boot soles
- Sole.ID height-adjustable gliding plates make these compatible with alpine (ISO 5355), touring (ISO 9523) and GripWalk boots
- Pozi screw at the front of the gliding plate makes it easy to adjust

Imported.

Great bindings!

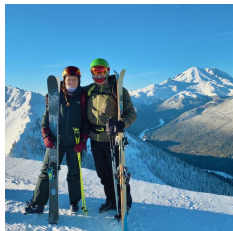

3 years ago

Great bindings! Got these to pair with my Nordica Santa Ana skis and they are powerful. I haven't had any issues getting in and out or them releasing when not needed. So far so good!

One of my two favorites

I love these bindings. They're easy to get in and get out, but hold well under aggressive skiing. These and the Salomon Warden 13 are my go-to bindings.

solid bindings at a solid cost

They do everything they're supposed to do at a reasonable price. No issues to speak of. Even adjusted them for my gripwalk boot soles and they are solid.

Solid binding. Never a problem or pre release and have used them on the last 4 pair of skis. Just wish they had some color options.

No Release caused injury

6 months ago

I had the dins set low for my weight and they didn't release causing me a bad knee injury. Currently on leave from work due to the injury and incurring lots of medical bills. These bindings have never released for me. This is the second time i was injured due to them not releasing.Done with this faulty product.

Don't release even on light settings

1 year ago

Didn't release when they should have. Blew out my knee and needed surgery, months of unpaid work. Dins were set only at a 5. Bindings are stiff to step into, even on light settings.

Free country ascent ski pants

Reasonably priced shell ski pants . Appear to be well made, fit well, true to size. Lack some of the bells and whistles, like Recco and full waterproofing, but perfect for warmer dry ski days.

Q: Are these bindings limited to "younger and lighter" riders? There is not an upper weight listed, would these be appropriate for a 180 pound skier?

Im looking at these for the Sender Soul 102s.
Doug

7 months ago

A: These are the lighter version of the Jester, providing the same features for younger and lighter riders. Consider a different model for an adult.

Q: I have a pair of skis with the prior version of the Marker Griffon 13 (2-3 years old & non "ID"). I am considering upgrading to the current (ID) version of this binding. Should the screw mounting holes be the same for both bindings?

Rick

a year ago

1 Answer

Answer the question

A: The hole pattern may be the same profile. However, you'll need to take the skis, boots, and bindings in for inspection as we may not be able to use the same holes as the prior bindings. Check out your local REI ski shop:
